SIXTH ITEM ON THE AGENDA

Proposed arrangement of Conventions by subject matter for reporting purposes

1. At its 282nd Session (November 2001), the Governing Body approved a number of adjustments to the system of regular reports submitted under article 22 of the Constitution, on the basis of the recommendations made by the LILS Committee. In particular, it decided to: 2

   – maintain the two-year and five-year reporting cycles, with the Conventions presently in each group;

   – approve the grouping of fundamental and priority Conventions with countries divided alphabetically for reporting purposes;

   – approve the principle of arranging all other Conventions by subject groups for reporting purposes;

   – discuss at the 283rd Session (March 2002) a draft grouping of other Conventions for purposes of reporting.

2. The current systems of reports on the application of Conventions comprises two reporting cycles: one two-year cycle for the 12 fundamental and priority Conventions, and another cycle of five years for the rest. The Conventions are distributed between the cycles in such a way as to equalize the secretariat’s workload. The most recent decisions by the Governing Body mean that an additional criterion must be considered for the purpose of that distribution, namely, grouping of Conventions by subject matter. It is expected that such a grouping should, among other things, make it easier for ministries of labour to gather information from the competent national institutions. It might also contribute to greater consistency in the analysis of reports, and provide a more comprehensive view of the application of Conventions in a given subject area.

1 GB.282/LILS/5.

2 GB.282/8/2, para. 47.
Fundamental and priority Conventions:
Two-year cycle

3. The fundamental and priority Conventions concern well-established subject areas (see Appendix 1), to wit:

Fundamental Conventions:

- Free of association and collective bargaining: Conventions Nos. 87 and 98
- Forced labour: Conventions Nos. 29 and 105
- Equality of opportunity and treatment: Conventions Nos. 100 and 111
- Child labour: Conventions Nos. 138 and 182

Priority Conventions:

- Employment policy: Convention No. 122
- Labour inspection: Conventions Nos. 81 and 129
- Tripartite consultations: Convention No. 144.

4. The regular reports on the application of these Conventions are examined by the Committee of Experts on the Application of Conventions and Recommendations every two years. The Governing Body decided at its previous session (see paragraph 1 above) that, on the one hand, the requests for reports on these Conventions would be grouped according to subject matter and that, on the other hand, in order to equalize the secretariat’s workload, requests for reports on each group of Conventions would be distributed in groups of countries, based on the alphabetical order of the member States concerned. This can be achieved, for example, if reports on groups of Conventions are provided one year by member States whose names begin with A to J, and another year by those whose names begin with K to Z. This division has the advantage of corresponding roughly to half the number of ratifications for each of the groups of Conventions in question. The arrangement adopted by the Office on that basis (see Appendix 3) also takes into account, as far as possible, the need to equalize the annual requests for reports between the two groups of States (A-J and K-Z).

Other Conventions: Five-year cycle

5. The Governing Body requested the Office to submit a draft grouping by subject matter of Conventions in the five-year reporting cycle, for reporting purposes. It has already been noted during previous discussions that there are different ways of approaching this grouping by subject matter. In the context defined in the present document, the Office proposes a division of the instruments into 20 groups (see Appendix 2).

6. In order to avoid any possible confusion, these groups have been clearly distinguished from those relating to the fundamental and priority Conventions. It has also been decided to group together all Conventions relating to the same category of workers, for example, seafarers, fishermen or dockworkers, rather than placing these under different subject headings (for example, occupational safety and health, social security, etc.). This would appear to be justified by the specific employment and working conditions of each of these categories of workers. It will also be noted that, following this division, a number of Conventions remain on their own. The Office considered that these instruments concerned matters that constitute subjects in their own right and could not easily be subsumed in broader subject areas.

7. On the basis of these groupings, an arrangement for requests for reports on Conventions in the five-year cycle has been established (Appendix 3). As regards groups comprising a very large number of Conventions, the secretariat is faced with the same problem of equalizing its workload as with the fundamental and priority Conventions. Consequently, the same solution is proposed, namely, a division into two groups (A-J and K-Z) by English alphabetical order of the names of the member States concerned. Such a division evens out the workload among all the groups.

8. Previous adjustments to the reporting system were adopted in 1993 and fully implemented in 1996. In accordance with the decision of the Governing Body, they were reassessed after an experimental period of five years. With regard to the adjustments set out in the present document, the Office proposes to implement them from 2003 onwards and to report to the Committee after a period of five years.

9. The Committee may wish to propose to the Governing Body:

   (a) that, for reporting purposes, it approve the proposed grouping by subject matter of Conventions in the five-year cycle, as set out in Appendix 2 of the present document;

   (b) that it take note of the arrangement of the groups of Conventions in two-year and five-year cycles for reporting purposes, as set out in Appendix 3;

   (c) that it invite the Office to implement the adjustments to the grouping of Conventions from 2003 onwards, and to report to the LILS Committee after a period of five years.
