I. Obituary

Mr. Bert Seidman

1. The Director-General announces with deep regret the death, on 24 June 2004, of Mr. Bert Siedman, former Worker member of the Governing Body.

2. Born in New York, United States, on 22 September 1919, Mr. Seidman studied at the University of Wisconsin. From a young age, he distinguished himself by his strength of conviction. A committed pacifist, he performed alternative service as a conscientious objector in civilian public service camps from 1944. While carrying out construction work at the Blue Ridge Parkway, he established a school of industrial relations for his fellow workers. At the end of the Second World War, whilst working in Pasadena, California, he led a long protest against the federal Government, which had ceased to pay conscientious objectors but had not released them from service.

3. His long trade union career is closely linked with the modern history of the American Federation of Labor-Congress of Industrial Organizations (AFL-CIO), including 24 years heading its Department of Social Security. A brilliant economist, he quickly established himself as a renowned specialist in social and retirement issues and health care. It was this that led him to become known in the international arena as one of the most ardent defenders of workers’ social rights. From 1958 to 1976, and again from 1987 to 1988, he attended 20 sessions of the International Labour Conference as a Worker delegate or Worker adviser representing AFL-CIO as part of the United States delegation. From 1962 to 1966, he also served, among other things, as AFL-CIO European representative dealing with economic matters.

4. A Worker member of the ILO Governing Body from November 1972 to March 1975, he will be remembered by all those who had the privilege of knowing him and working alongside him in the ILO’s executive bodies as a man of passion and conviction, whose energies were entirely devoted to defending the most powerless in society. The memory of his tireless work for retirees in the United States, which he continued throughout his life, is evidence in itself of his immense generosity.

5. The Governing Body will no doubt wish to request the Director-General to convey its sympathy to the family of Mr. Bert Seidman and to the American Federation of Labor-Congress of Industrial Organizations.

Denunciation of a Convention

Australia

8. The Director-General registered, on 6 February 2004, the denunciation by Australia of the Contracts of Employment (Indigenous Workers) Convention, 1947 (No. 86). The text of the communication concerning the denunciation by Australia of this Convention reads as follows:

In 1997, the International Labour Conference adopted a Constitutional amendment which would allow the abrogation or repeal of any ILO Convention that had lost its purpose or that no longer made a useful contribution to attaining ILO objectives. While this amendment has not yet come into effect, Australia accepted it in October 2001. In this context, the Australian Government decided to review the ILO Conventions ratified for Australia with a view to identifying those that were obsolete. The Australian Government then decided that Convention No. 86 was obsolete.

The ILO has shelved Convention No. 86, as the practices described in the Convention have largely disappeared.

Australia’s ratification of Convention No. 86 has had no practical effect, as it was subsequently declared to be not applicable to Norfolk Island, which was the only Australian territory to which Convention No. 86 might apply.

In addition, the ILO no longer asks ratifying countries to submit reports on the application of Convention No. 86.

In accordance with the provisions of the Tripartite Consultation (International Labour Standards) Convention, 1976 (No. 144), the Australian Government consulted with representative organizations of employers and of workers concerning the proposal to denounce the Convention. The Australian Chamber of Commerce and Industry (ACCI) and the Australian Council of Trade Unions (ACTU) both indicated support for the proposal.
Entry into force of a Convention and a Protocol to a Convention

9. In accordance with its Article 12, paragraph 2, the Seafarers’ Identity Documents Convention (Revised), 2003 (No. 185), will come into force six months after the date on which the ratifications of two Members have been registered. Following its ratification by Jordan, registered on 9 August 2004, this condition is fulfilled. Convention No. 185 will accordingly come into force on 9 February 2005.

10. In accordance with its Article 8, paragraph 2, the Protocol of 2002 additional to the Occupational Safety and Health Convention, 1981, will come into force 12 months after the date on which the ratifications of two Members have been registered. Following its ratification by Albania, registered on 9 February 2004, this condition is fulfilled. The Protocol of 2002 will accordingly come into force on 9 February 2005.

11. Since the preparation of the document submitted to the 289th Session of the Governing Body, the Director-General has received the following ratifications of the Instrument:

- Comoros ratification 17 March 2004
- Guinea ratification 23 February 2004
- Lithuania ratification 3 March 2004
- Nigeria ratification 14 June 2004

The total number of ratifications and acceptances is now 80, including six by States of chief industrial importance.

III. Internal administration

12. Article 4.2(d) of the Staff Regulations states:

Vacancies in the Director and Principal Officer category shall be filled by the Director-General by transfer in the same grade, promotion or appointment. Such promotions or appointments, other than to vacancies in technical cooperation projects, shall be reported to the Governing Body with a short statement of the qualifications of the persons so promoted or appointed.
